

Graphique Strategies Proposal

Keyaa Kapadia

- 01 Residue
- 02 The Weight of Waiting
- 03 Said Aloud

Residue

Making the Invisible Visible

Make the invisible visible

Remove all decoration

How much of my attention goes somewhere I don't even remember?

A book of everything I typed and deleted in one week.

Log

An extension records every deletion and how long it lived.

Generate

basil.js turns the log into a book, new each week.

Print

Kept words on paper, erased words on vellum above them.

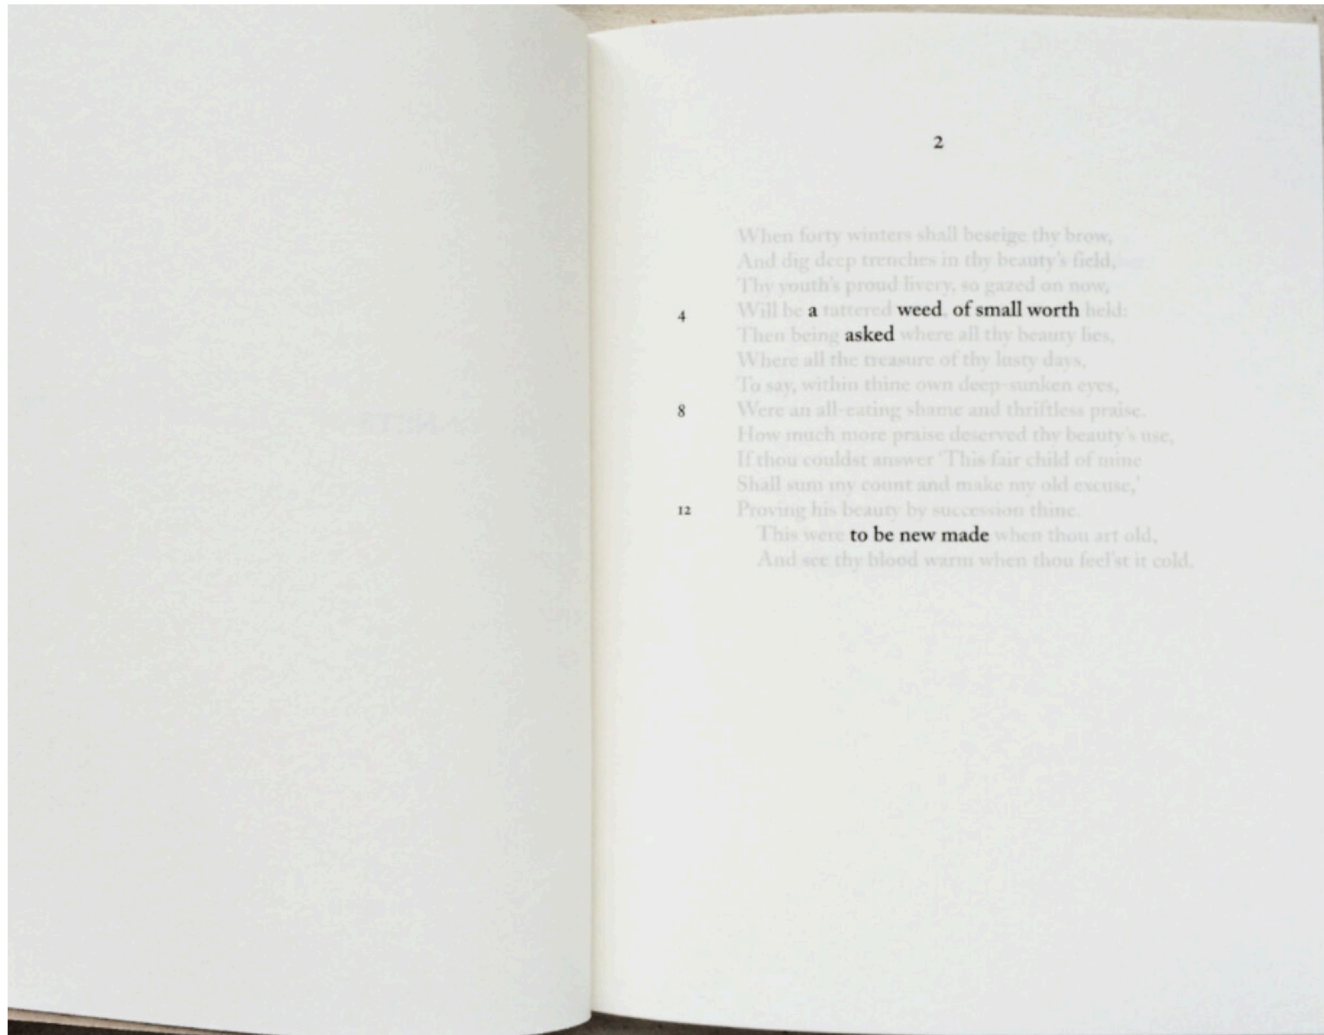

Can hesitation be read as data?

Keytweeter

Kyle McDonald

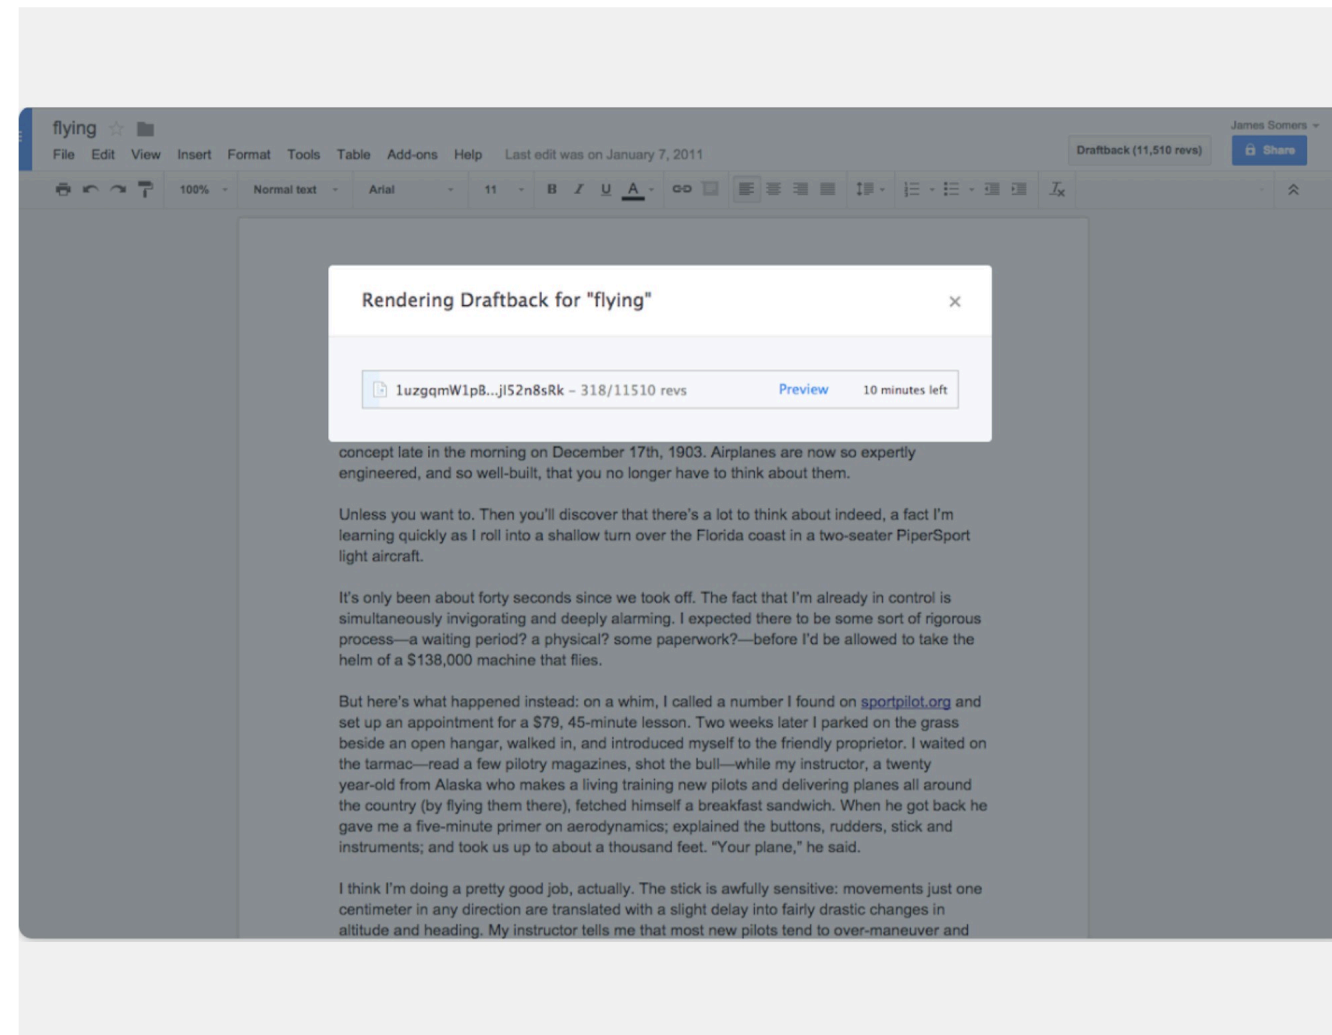

Published every keystroke. Residue keeps only the ones that didn't survive.

Nets

Jen Bervin

Erased words stay on the page as a ghost of what was there.

Draftback

James Somers

Every deletion is already saved. We just never look at it.

A Humument

Tom Phillips

Erasure as book design. What's removed becomes the image.

The Weight of Waiting

Making the Immaterial Material

Introduce a new perspective

Create a data visualization

What does time feel like when it is given mass?

A data visualization of how one minute feels in different waits.

Log

I note how long each wait felt, then check the clock.

Weigh

Each wait gets a weight: burden, certainty, stakes.

Drop

Every minute falls into a simulation and piles up.

1 minute $\neq$ 1 minute.

Bruises

Giorgia Lupi & Kaki King

Anxious waiting turned into data, emotion beside the numbers.

Dear Data

Giorgia Lupi & Stefanie Posavec

Many variables, one hand-drawn system that still feels human.

Untitled (Portrait of Ross in L.A.)

Felix Gonzalez-Torres

175 lb of candy, a body's weight. A feeling given mass.

Said Aloud

Making the Ephemeral Permanent

Take us on a journey

One idea, many forms

Does the effort to preserve a moment risk stripping away the impermanence that made it matter?

Everything I say in one day, printed in five languages.

Record

One day of my own voice. No one else's words.

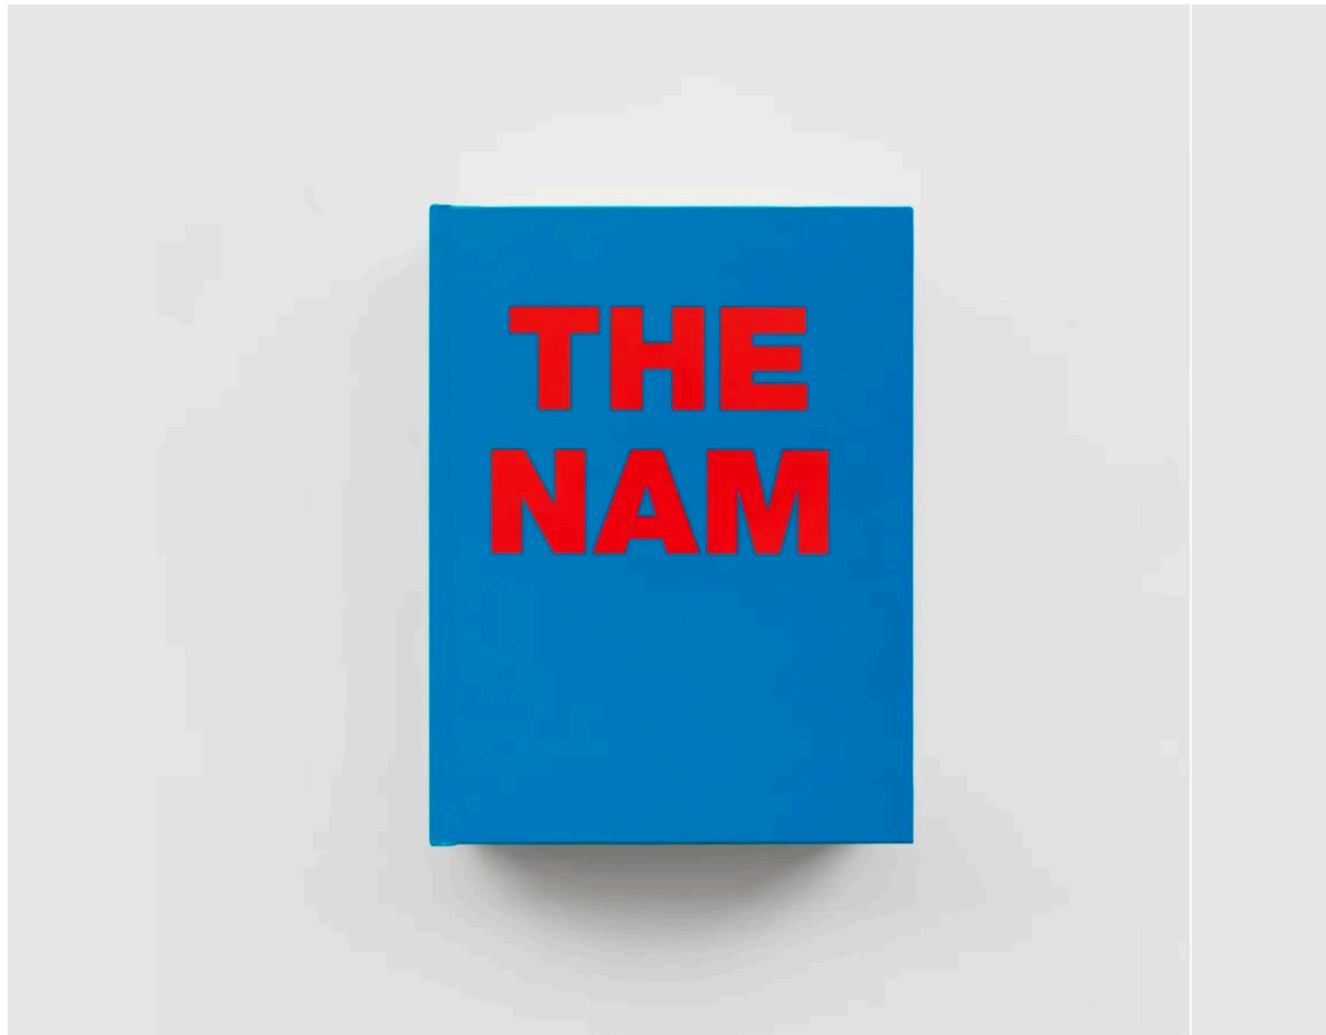

Transcribe

Turn speech into text across all five languages.

Print

Each language gets a color, so every switch is visible.

What happens to my voice between languages?

The Nam

Fiona Banner

Six films transcribed into 1,000 pages.
Speech made into an object.

